

Year of the Nurse 2020 and Covid-19: Opportunities to Support Nurses as Heroes of Health Care

Dear editor,

The authors are members of the nursing faculty and as nurses' educators are concerned with the nursing profession and have a responsibility to strive to promote the profession. The World Health Organization had declared 2020 as the International Year of the Nurse. This is a unique opportunity to recognize and showcase the work and contributions of nurses to the health system more broadly. Moreover, by the onset of COVID-19 pandemic, the role of nurses has been thrown into sharp relief. However, they confront with many challenges under the shadow of COVID-19.^[1]

Nurses are more susceptible to infections due to the exposure to pathogens, long working hours, psychological distress, fatigue, sleep deprivation, and burnout.^[2] Now is the time to support them as the key members of health care system to provide a standard and safe care for patients, since the coronavirus will not be the last threat to human health. Therefore, following suggestions are provided.

Support and protecting nurses in a safe working place without fear or anxiety by providing personal protective equipment and prevention of violence against them. Providing spiritual care^[3] and psychological consultation for nurses who care for the patients with COVID-19 and their families especially nurses' children. Providing financial support for nurses, who have been at the front line of the pandemic, so would be awarded a pay rise and first in line for financial compensation of their efforts. Providing adequate nurse staffing that improve patient safety and the quality of care and associated with significant reduction in mortality rate of COVID-19.^[4] Training and employing certified nursing assistants to increase the health care system ability to manage the current crisis effectively.^[4] Promoting the role of nurses' leadership to ensure their effective role in decision making and policy process.^[5] Formulating fair labor policies for nurses that refers to the law of strictness and harmfulness of this profession and full implementation of the law of productivity promotion.^[5]

Promoting the trustworthiness of the nursing profession, dignity, and autonomy in the workplace; promote the community's awareness and perspective of nursing practice and their real position. Hope that considering these suggestions a better future will be built for nursing profession after the COVID-19 pandemic.

Financial support and sponsorship

Nil.

Conflicts of interest

Nothing to declare.

Zahra Borzabadi Farahani¹, Nazi Nejat¹

¹School of Nursing,
Arak University of Medical Sciences, Arak, Iran

Address for correspondence:

Dr. Nazi Nejat,
Payambar Azam University Complex, Basij Square, Arak, Iran.
E-mail: n.nejat@arakmu.ac.ir

References

1. Sutcliffe A. Nursing and midwifery in the time of COVID-19. 2020. Available from: <https://www.healthuropa.eu/nursing-and-midwifery-in-the-time-of-covid-19/101886/>.
2. Sultana A, Sharma R, Hossain MM, Bhattacharya S, Purohit N. Burnout among healthcare providers during COVID-19: Challenges and evidence-based interventions. Indian journal of medical ethics 2020;V(4):1-6. DOI:10.20529/ijme.2020.73.
3. Kim Y. Nurses' experiences of care for patients with Middle East respiratory syndrome-coronavirus in South Korea. Am J Infect Control 2018;46:781-7.
4. Padula WV, Davidson P. Countries with High Registered Nurse (RN) Concentrations Observe Reduced Mortality Rates of Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19). Ssm. 2020:3566190.
5. WHO. World Health Day 2020 – Support nurses and midwives 2020. Available from: <https://www.euro.who.int/en/media-centre/events/events/2020/04/world-health-day-2020/news/news2>.

This is an open access journal, and articles are distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 License, which allows others to remix, tweak, and build upon the work non-commercially, as long as appropriate credit is given and the new creations are licensed under the identical terms.

Access this article online

Quick Response Code:

Website:
www.ijnmrjournal.net

DOI:
10.4103/ijnmr.IJNMR_436_20

How to cite this article: Borzabadi Farahani Z, Nejat N. Year of the nurse 2020 and Covid-19: Opportunities to support nurses as heroes of health care. Iranian J Nursing Midwifery Res 2021;26:467.

Submitted: 07-Dec-2020.

Revised: 20-Feb-2021.

Accepted: 08-May-2021.

Published: 02-Sep-2021.

©2021 Iranian Journal of Nursing and Midwifery Research | Published by Wolters Kluwer - Medknow